Before explaining Exposure Value (EV for short), it helps to know what Light Value (LV, for short) means. When you find something (whether it's a person, a landscape, or even a ninja), there are (generally speaking) two main levels of light you need to deal with. The first is the average amount of light in [...]

I have to take contention to Carl's statement. From what I got out of this article was the intention to explain depth of field as a tool to use to isolate or if wanted, blend in a subject as in nature shots where there isn't necessarily one defined subject and the image as a whole becomes the subject.
