Brisinger is the third novel in the Inheritance Cycle by Christopher Paolini. It was released on September 20, 2008. Originally, Paolini intended to conclude the then Inheritance Trilogy in three books, but during writing the third book he decided that the series was too complex to conclude in one book, because the single book would be close to 1,500 pages long.

From NYT bestselling author Brent Weeks comes the first novel in his breakout fantasy trilogy in which a young boy trains under the city's most legendary and feared assassin, Durzo Blint. For Durzo Blint, assassination is an art—and he is the city's most accomplished artist. For Azoth, survival is precarious. Something you never take for granted.

Several criticisms have been leveled at the Inheritance Cycle in terms of story, characterization, and even strategic decisions. But little has been said about the magic (other than that it steals its mechanics from Earthsea), which is odd, because it is frankly one of the most absurdly described things in Christopher Paolini's work. In fact, I would say it is my main criticism of the story ...

Beautiful, complex, and refreshingly original, The Killing Moon shines bright! Ehiru-the dreamer-Ehiru is a Gatherer in the city-state of Gujaareh. He has devoted his life to serving the goddess Hananja. Upon taking a commission, he enters a person's dreams and gathers the dreamer's soul so that they will live in peace forever, even though their body dies in the process.
