On 7 May 1959, Snow delivered a Rede Lecture called The Two Cultures, which provoked "widespread and heated debate". Subsequently published as The Two Cultures and the Scientific Revolution, the lecture argued that the breakdown of communication between the "two cultures" of modern society – the sciences and the humanities – was a major hindrance to solving the world's problems.

My mother instilled in me a love of reading, so when I discovered several of Sabatini's titles in a bookstore, I bought Captain Blood. Many years later, I did some pirate research that took me back to this novel. As I reread Captain Blood in preparation for writing this article, I realized how much I hadn't understood the first time.

For a while now, I've been working on my not-so-secret project: a big nonfiction comic about visual communication across disciplines. This blog will continue to be pretty quiet while I toil away at the book, but bits and pieces have been showing up in my visual lecture as well. If you manage to catch me on the road anytime in the next year or two, you're bound to see evidence of this ...
