Penguin Books is a British publishing house. It was co-founded in 1935 by Sir Allen Lane, his brothers Richard and John, as a line of the publishers The Bodley Head, only becoming a separate company the following year. Penguin revolutionised publishing in the 1930s through its inexpensive paperbacks, sold through Woolworths and other high street stores for sixpence, bringing high-quality ...

Penguin cover designer Chris Bentham discusses the striking new cover for The Rights of Man. This is an almost exact replica of the original cover for The Rights of Man. That's quite an unusual design approach but it felt right, given that there are so many parallels between the time that it was published (1940) and now - particularly the fact that human rights legislation, which H.G Wells ...

So what does it mean for a species as cosmopolitan as the double-crested cormorant to be “overabundant”? How many cormorants are “too many”? Much of the debate about managing the bird swirls around whether it’s native to a particular region and how many once lived there—facts that have been difficult to pin down.
