The Dain Curse Dashiell Hammett

Dashiell Hammett's second novel featuring The Continental Op (Red Harvest), The Dain Curse (1929) is another great hard-boiled yarn. This story concerns a well drawn femme fatale-Miss Gabrielle Dain Leggett-a young, wealthy, morphine addict who is part of a religious cult.

The Dain Curse is perhaps as close to a postmodernist detective story as Dashiell Hammett wrote. The story is fabulously contrived in a manner that could only be the work of a writer, and indeed the book's two central male characters are a detective and an author, the two professions that Hammett himself had adopted.

The Dain Curse is probably the weakest of Hammett's novels, and definitely the strangest. The overall arc is told via three detective stories: the first is about the Op investigating a diamond burglary, the second has him investigating cult weirdness, and the third has him investigating small-town weirdness, with a short detour that reveals a ...
