For practiced Parisians and new tourists alike, being in Châtelet-Les Halles station is a singular experience. And considering it's the biggest underground station in the world – yes, the world! – that makes sense. Châtelet-Les Halles, with its links to three regional city lines (RER) and five metro lines, is one of the city's most iconic locations.

Les Halles (French pronunciation: , The Halls) was Paris's central fresh food market. It was demolished in 1971 and replaced by the Forum des Halles, a modern shopping mall built largely underground and directly connected to the massive RER and métro transit hub of Châtelet-Les-Halles. The shopping mall welcomes 150,000 visitors daily. A major reconstruction of the mall was undertaken in 2010 ...

In the early morning hours of June 5, crowds of workers, students, and others gathered in the streets of Paris. The immediate trigger was the death of General Jean Maximilien Lamarque, who had been a friend to the poor and downtrodden. The crowd had hoped to accompany Lamarque's hearse before it took the general home to his native district in the southwest of France.

This first thing you notice about Les Papilles is the wine, and the place does double-duty as a wine bar. The window has boxes and boxes of bottles of wine stacked neatly, and as you walk in, one side of the restaurant is entirely devoted to wine and a few choice food products, like smoky piment d'Espelette, chocolate sauce with sour cherries, and chocolate-dipped almonds, that are ...
