Courtesy requires the return of all civil greetings--those of servants included. Only the most serious causes can justify "a cut". In bowing, the head should be best; a mere lowering of the eyelids, affected by some people, is rude; but etiquette does not permit a familiar nod, except between business men, or very intimate friends.

A gentlemen's club, or traditional gentlemen's club, is a private social club originally set up by and for British upper-class men in the 18th century, and popularised by English upper middle-class men and women in the late 19th century and early 20th century.. Many countries outside the United Kingdom have prominent gentlemen's clubs, mostly those associated with the British Empire.
