Identifying the Noise. Multipath: Static, noisy, distorted stereo sound, especially when music is playing, that greatly improves when switched to mono. Multipath is the most common source of problems, and is caused by signal reflections from buildings, mountains, trees, etc., just like the "ghosts" in TV reception (before cable).

10/9/08. Return to previous page . Gain - Gain is a measure of how much signal the antenna will collect. The gain varies according to the direction. If the maker specifies a gain for the antenna, it refers to the gain in the antenna's best direction. A higher best gain always results in a narrower beam. No antenna has the exact same gain for every channel.
