Eusociality (from Greek εὖ eu "good" and social), the highest level of organization of sociality, is defined by the following characteristics: cooperative brood care (including care of offspring from other individuals), overlapping generations within a colony of adults, and a division of labor into reproductive and non-reproductive groups. The division of labor creates specialized ...

For many readers of World War II poetry, Henry Reed is known for a single poem, "Naming of Parts." He is not alone with that perception. Several other poets of the war are associated today with a single poem, including F.T. Prince, Alan Ross and Alan Rook in the UK and Randall Jarrell and Richard Eberhart in the United States.
