The Touch of Fire — Linda Howard

Linda Howard was the first romance author I read & I've read a large number of her books. Annie, the heroine in this book is very sweet & caring. She's a pioneer of her time being a female doctor but she lacks the fire/spunk/attitude of some other of Howard's heroines such as Maddie in Duncan's Bride or Jillian in Heart of Fire or Dee in Angel ...

The Touch of Fire is the fifth Linda Howard novel that I read, and my favorite so far. (I've read All The Queen's Men, After the Night, Dream Man, and Heart of Fire.) I was completely enthralled by Heart of Fire, and didn't think this one would top it.

The Touch of Fire book by Linda Howard - ThriftBooks

The Touch of Fire. Annie Parker is the lone doctor in boomtown Silver Mesa, a woman with a ``worn, weary look" but with ``softness in her brown eyes" and healing magic in her hands. An unlikely pair could not be found, yet fate and a gunshot wound throw them together in Howard's (Angel Creek) new novel, set in Arizona territory in the 1870s .
