NOTE: The following stories seem to describe two kinds of "electric human" phenomena. One involves conventional static electricity, and the other is something more mysterious. If you *DON'T* get constant shocks when touching either people or metal objects, yet electronic devices often fail in your presence, then your problem is not strictly electrical.

Beyond Good and Evil. As might be expected of a computer science professor, Cal Newport is no technology-hating luddite. One of the things I appreciate most about Digital Minimalism is the care he takes in unpicking the various tradeoffs involved.. For example: Facebook produced some studies demonstrating that social media is good. Other researchers find that it's bad.
