All in the golden afternoon. The poem "All in the golden afternoon" is not a parody, but was entirely made up by Carroll himself. There are several noteworthy elements in it though. The poem tells the story of how Alice's Adventures in Wonderland came to be: Carroll told it during a boat trip to Alice and her sisters.

The Case of the Haven Hotel begins with a brief introduction of the two series-detectives, Travers and Wharton, in which the former explains how "long years in the company of George Wharton" has matured him. Travers' introduction to Wharton is truly excellent. Showing why they're perhaps my favorite team of detectives.

The Trap Door is a British animated television series, originally shown in the United Kingdom in 1984. The plot revolves around the daily lives and the misadventures of a group of monsters living in a castle. Although the emphasis was on humour and the show was marketed as a children's programme, it drew much from horror and dark fantasy. The show has since become a cult favourite and remains one ...

He smiled lustfully at the cutely protruding belly-button resting beneath rippling abdominal muscles. He noticed the boy's rich-golden skin glowing with a sheen of sweat. James thought to himself that it was a shame such beauty remained concealed beneath layers of clothing most of the boy's waking hours.
