Wolf watching is an activity almost exclusively confined to Yellowstone National Park, at least for the general public. Just the fact that you might see a wolf is wonderful, but the fact that you probably WILL see one if you go at the right time of year and spend time in the right locations is just incredible. In a 7 day visit we typically see the large canids 3-4 days in both the spring and fall.

Caught a preview showing last night, and I'm a little surprised myself to report that the aptly named Old School is actually a welcome return to a formula all but abandoned by Hollywood for much of the past couple of decades - that of the unapologetic, raucous, cheap laughs for cheap-laughs sake,
