The Reformed Pastor Richard Baxter

Richard Baxter (12 November 1615 – 8 December 1691) was an English Puritan church leader, poet, hymnodist, theologian, and controversialist. Dean Stanley called him "the chief of English Protestant Schoolmen". After some false starts, he made his reputation by his ministry at Kidderminster, and at around the same time began a long and prolific career as theological writer.

Expository Preaching. All good books on homiletics will tell you that in every sermon, regardless of whether it is doctrinal, hortatory, topical and expository, or practical and narrative, expository preaching is the foundation of every true biblical sermon. That means, if you are not expositing the bible, you are not preaching, or rather, you are not preaching as a herald or messenger on ...

Lutheranism - Pietism: During the period of orthodox dominance, some Lutheran theologians argued that Christianity was not so much a system of doctrine as a guide for practical Christian living. Foremost among them was Johann Arndt (1555–1621), whose devotional writings were extremely popular in the 17th century. Arndt's major work, The Four Books of True Christianity (1605–09), was a ...

Preaching on Sunday for my friend, Jeff Stivason, at Grace Reformed Presbyterian Church I was reminded of how beautiful unaccompanied psalm singing can be. While I am not an exclusive psalmodist, I was first ordained as ruling elder in a (then) psalms-only denomination (the Free Church of Scotland) and still believe that they should provide the core of Christian worship and a basic element in ...
